SECTION I: STRUCTURE OF THE NEXT LEVEL CHALLENGE

The NEXT LEVEL CHALLENGE is a 6 to 15 week online educational course based on academic research into higher levels of consciousness (HLC). The purpose of the NEXT LEVEL CHALLENGE is to attempt to assist you with finding methods that may support you with experiencing HLC. The course works with many aspects of a person, including (but not limited to): thoughts, feelings, memories, emotions, and sense of self. During the course, you may experience thoughts, feelings, or sensations that you have not previously explored thoroughly. You may not experience happiness during all portions of the course.

In preparing for the course, it's important to consider that you will be confronting negative patterns. The NEXT LEVEL CHALLENGE ORGANIZATION recognizes that some people wish to avoid any experiences that involve negative emotions. Therefore, if after reading the following descriptions or any portion of this document, you have any concern about your ability to fully participate in the course, it is recommended that you reevaluate your decision to take the course.

Please note that if you have active suicidal intent, homicidal intent or a diagnosis of unstable mental health, this course is not for you. Please notify us immediately and withdraw from the course.

The NEXT LEVEL CHALLENGE involves:

- 1. Presentations and discussions. Course teachers and mentors will speak about various subjects that are relevant to your life, and to the transition to HLC.
- 2. Meditation, contemplation, and related practices. You will need to devote a minimum of one continuous hour per day to various meditative, contemplative, and psychological practices.
- 3. Positive psychology exercises and techniques. You will need to devote a minimum of 15 minutes each day to practicing techniques from positive psychology and related disciplines.
- 4. Small group sessions. You will be assigned to a small group other participants, which may or may not have a course provided mentor. At a minimum you will meet weekly with your group to discuss and clarify what you are learning, provide mutual support, and engage in group practices and exercises.
- 5. Personal interactions with teachers, mentors, and other course staff. At various times throughout the course you may have direct personal interaction with course teachers, mentors and staff. This may be one-on-one or as part of a group. One or more of these individuals may explain something to you, give you personal direction, or ask or answer questions. The course staff's perspective is that you are committed to your own growth. The staff's style is to be caring, supportive and responsive to each participant's needs. Staff are respectful of your free-choice and individuality while showing how to meet the challenges you face and encouraging you to do so. At times you may experience some anxiety and risk in exploring new approaches to old problems.

6. Measures and other research documents. The course is an ongoing research project being conducted in conjunction with the Center for the Study of Non-Symbolic Consciousness. You will be required to fill out psychological measures at the beginning, middle, and end of the course. You will also be required to complete a life narrative exercise at these intervals. In addition to these, other assessments may be requested for research purposes.

7. Physiological data collection. Portions of the course are an ongoing research project being conducted in conjunction with the Center for the Study of Non-Symbolic Consciousness and the Transformative Technology Lab at Sofia University. As part of the study you will be required to wear physiological monitoring equipment during some of the exercises or at other times. This equipment may include but is not limited to: galvanic skin response sensors, heart rate sensors, and brainwave sensors. You must have an approved cellphone to participate in the course. This cellphone must have reliable Internet access. All physiological devices will connect to your cellphone via Bluetooth or wired connection. You will be required to run an app on your phone in a designated way, and at designated times. This app will connect to the devices and stream their data into our cloud-based data storage system.
